Connor has been feeling strange lately. His internal scan doesn't detect a malfunction, but he's sure an anomaly is operating inside him. He can't explain it in words, although he has been a Deviant for quite some time. As Markus has defended his people through violence and revolution, tensions between humans and androids are at their highest. Connor is even more vigilant, as several angry humans have already tried to shoot him down. He is also concerned about Hank. His partner could very well be the target of a kidnapping to get to him. Connor didn't share his concerns with him. After all, Hank is tense enough as it is. As Connor recharges and his consciousness floats into nothingness, he hears a voice.

< Who is there? >

The voice doesn't answer Connor.

< My name is Connor. I'm an android RK800, identify yourself immediately. >

Then he heard a word: "Tron" followed by a very strange question.

< Am I derezzed? >

Connor cancels his recharge and opens his eyes. He does another internal scan, as thorough as possible, and then he detects something. A series of unknown codes, forming an AI.

< Hey. Are you still here? Tron? >

The voice answers him.

< Yes. Connor, right? >

< Right. What's your model, Tron? >

< Model? I don't understand. I am a security program. Am I being derezzed? >

< Derezzed? What do you mean by derezzed? >

< Erased, destroyed... dead? And where is Yori? >

Connor doesn't know what to say. How did this Tron, this program, get inside him? How long has it been there? Who is Yori? Connor's going to have to find the answers and alone. He doesn't want to bring Hank into this.
